8. The Committee have decided that in future years only results obtained with a variety on areas of not less than 20 acres on any estate are to be considered as of weight. This, it is hoped, will eliminate the disturbing influence on the mean results of the abnormally high or low yields not unfrequently reported as being obtained on small areas. Table C. has been drawn up in accordance with this.

It may be of interest to place on record the maximum and minimum crops, on areas of over 20 acres each reported with the more widely grown of the varieties :—

	TONS OF SUGAR PER ACRE.
	Maximum. Minimum.
Bourbon ...	2.48 (ratoons) .60 (plants.)

B 147 ...	2.29 (plants and ratoons) 1.04 (ratoons.)
White Transparent ...	1.72 (plants and ratoons) 1.00 (ratoons.)

It is of interest to note that the variety D 109, which apparently is rapidly falling off in its general yields, gave the highest yield returned as obtained during the year on an area of over 20 acres.

14. As in earlier years, the opinions of planters with regard to the milling quality of the varieties and the fuel-value of the megass yielded by them varied greatly. On the whole the preponderance of opinions was as follows on each of these points :—

		Milling Qualities.	Fuel-value of Megass.
D 625	...	Moderate to good	Fair
208 B	...	Fair to good	Fair to good
D 145	...	Poor to fair	Bad to fair
D 109	...	Fair to good	Poor to good
Bourbon	...	Good	Good
147 B	...	Fair to good	Fair to good
White Transparent	...	Fair	Very bad to bad
Sealy	...	Fair to good	Poor
109 B	...	Fair to good	Fair
Green Transparent	...	Good	Fair to good
B 41	...	Fair	Good
D 78	...	Bad	Bad
D 95	...	Fair to good	Fair to good
D 115	...	Poor	Poor
D 116	...	Fair to good	Poor to fair
D 117	...	Fair to good	Poor
D 185	...	Fair	Fair
B 376	...	Good	Fair
D 3956	...	Fair	Poor
D 4399	...	Good	Good

But with the exceptions of the Bourbon and its seedling variety D 4399 in the case of every variety of cane some of those dealing with it found its milling quality or the fuel-value of its megass more or less unsatisfactory.

15. In the following table the varieties are arranged in the order of the saccharine strength of their juices as shown by the means of the contents of saccharose in pounds per gallon during the five years 1904-1908. The means of the quotients of non-sugars, and of the recovery of commercial sugars per cent. of indicated sugar in the juices of the varieties are also given :—

	Saccharose lbs. per gallon.	Quotient of purity.	Quotient of non-sugars.	Glucose ratio.	Recovery of commercial sugar on indicated sugar %
208 B	1.587	87.8	6.6	6.7	87.0
D 74*	1.567	84.1	8.0	8.1	83.4
D 95	1.559	85.0	8.6	7.3	83.7
D 145	1.460	83.0	9.6	9.0	83.2
Sealy	1.455	81.5	10.8	9.2	88.0
D 116	1.443	82.2	8.9	9.1	7.8
Bourbon	1.435	81.8	10.6	9.3	84.7
White Transparent	1.432	81.8	11.0	8.5	85.6
D 78	1.424	80.6	12.1	9.3	85.1
147 B	1.408	81.5	11.0	9.4	86.6
D 109	1.407	81.3	10.8	9.1	85.1
D 625	1.401	81.5	11.0	9.9	81.3
D 115	1.400	81.4	11.6	9.3	85.9
D 117	1.326	80.5	11.4	9.8	84.7

The marked differences in the saccharine strength of the expressed juices of the varieties of canes so noticeable in small plot experiments are less accentuated under factory conditions. But records show that the relative order of the varieties of canes when classed by the saccharine strength of their expressed juices is very similar in factory trials and in plot experiments.

16. Among the varieties, reports of trials of which have been received but which have not been cultivated on more than two estates, the following are worthy of notice. The yields are shown in tons of commercial sugar per acre and as compared with the yield of the Bourbon variety growing on the same plantation or plantations taken as 100 :—

	Tons of Canes per acre.	Bourbon yield taken as 100.
Diamond 185	2.58	142.5
D 1896	2.25	141.5
Diamond 402	2.42	134.8
41 B	1.97	130.4
D 130	2.46	121.1
D 4415	2.16	116.1
D 4399	2.51	112.5
D 3956	2.21	110.0

17. The experiments indicate that many varieties of sugar-cane can be relied upon in British Guiana to give yields of sugar in quantities equal to or greater than those obtained from the Bourbon, and that several varieties possess well-marked ratooning qualities. D 625 and D 145 can be safely recommended for trial on relatively heavy lands, 208 B is especially suited for lighter soils, and B 376 and D 4,399 appear to be worthy of more extended trials.

Certain varieties—the White Transparent and its seedling progeny, D 74, D 95, D 109, D 115, D 116 and D 117—show marked signs of falling off in their yields, especially where grown as ratoon canes, and the Committee feel that their cultivation should not be continued except on lands which have proved very suitable to their growth. D 109 showed on many plantations signs of falling off in its yields, especially where grown as 2nd and as older ratoons, although on some it gave very satisfactory results as plant canes. The falling off in the yields of certain of the varieties noticed in this colony is similar to experience reported from elsewhere with varieties of sugar-canes which have been raised from seed. The Committee recognize that it is a very important factor, and it is receiving their close attention.

* 4 years only.

18. Cultivation of new varieties of sugar-canes has become so extended that the statement in earlier reports that "in the cases of many of the experiments the varieties of sugar-cane have been grown on land on which the Bourbon cane does not flourish" no longer holds good.

19. The Committee desire to express their thanks to those proprietors, attorneys and managers who have been good enough to place records at their disposal, and they trust that the records of the past eight years' trials may prove of service to those interested in the sugar industry of this colony.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

J. B. HARRISON,

Director.

I Do hereby intimate to all to whom it may concern that on the 21st day of July, 1909, I accepted a complete specification of the said invention by the said applicants, the said James Scott Turner, Engineer, and Arthur Wellesley Maxwell, Merchant, and that any person may, within two months from the date of this advertisement of my acceptance of the said complete specification, give notice in writing to the Registrar's Office aforesaid of opposition to the grant of the said patent in terms of section 10 (1) of the Patents Ordinance, 1902.

Registrar.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 11TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

HO-A-YIT, Appellant,
versus

J. WALBRIDGE, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate of the Berbice Judicial District who fined the appellant $50 or 2 months' hard labour on a complaint that rum below 25 per cent. under proof was sold from the retail spirit shop of which he is the holder of the licence.

The reasons for appeal are:—

1. That illegal evidence has been admitted by the Magistrate's Court and there is not sufficient legal evidence to sustain the decision after rejecting such illegal evidence—the evidence both documentary and oral which refers to a certificate signed by the Assistant Receiver General and Ho-a-Yit mentioned in the certificate. (This reason was abandoned at the hearing.)

2. That the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict.

3. The decision is erroneous in point of law.

(a.) Because the evidence did not establish the charge of complaint against the defendant, there being no evidence that rum of a strength below 25 per cent. under proof was sold by the defendant or his servant or in contravention of the law.

According to the evidence both for the complainant and for the defence a half bottle of rum was sold by the defendant's servant to a man named Spencer. The contents of this bottle when tested proved to be 39 under proof. There were in the shop casks of rum of a strength within the law and it was said that the rum in the bottle was drawn from one of these casks. There was also a pail of water near the casks.

According to all the evidence for the complainant the men who were supplied with the bottle of rum did nothing to it, as it was taken by the Commissary as it was handed by defendant's shopman. If the Magistrate believed then as he did the water was added before the bottle was handed to the customer. That it was under the required strength is undoubted.

I dismiss the appeal with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

VAUGHAN, Appellant,

versus

FOX, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of a Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who adjudged the appellant to be the father of the bastard child of respondent, a married woman, and made an order for the payment to the mother, of 48 cents per week, so long as she shall live and shall be of sound mind, and shall not be in prison or under sentence of transportation; until the child shall attain the age of 14 years or shall die.

The reasons for appeal are:—

1. The decision is erroneous in point of law:

(a) Because it was not competent for the Magistrate to admit evidence to contradict the statements of the birth certificate.

(b) Because the statements in the said certificate could only have been supplied by the complainant.

(c) Because there was direct evidence to prove access between husband and wife.

(d) No admission of paternity period.

(e) The order of adjudication is wrong with respect to time and conditions.

(f) Because the Ordinance 2 of 1855, regulating bastardy proceedings, has not been wholly swept away.

(g) There is no evidence that information supplied in birth certificate had emanated from an official attached to the Hospital.

2. That illegal evidence was admitted by the Magistrate's Court, and there is not sufficient legal evidence to sustain the decision after rejecting such illegal evidence.

(a) That evidence should not have been admitted by the Court to rebut any statement in the birth certificate.

(b) The defendant told many people he was the father.

3. That the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict.

(a) The evidence of Mary Fox as to her position in defendant's house.

(b) The evidence of Elvira Fox on this point.

(c) The evidence of Miriam Husbands on this point.

The learned Magistrate, in his decision, goes very thoroughly and correctly into the law on the subject. When a married woman has a child the presumption is in favour of its legitimacy. This presumption, thus established by law, is not to be rebutted by circumstances which may create a doubt and suspicion, but it may be wholly removed by showing that the husband was, first, incompetent; second, entirely absent so as to have had no intercourse or communication of any kind with the mother; thirdly, entirely absent at the period during which the child must, in the course of nature, have been begotten; fourthly, only present under such circumstances as afford clear and satisfactory proof that there was no sexual intercourse: such evidence as this puts an end to the question and establishes the illegitimacy of the child of a married woman (Hargrave v. Hargrave, 9 Beavan, 552).

The testimony of the husband or wife, that, though living together they have had no connection, has been uniformly rejected. The Magistrate eliminated the evidence of the respondent and the question for him to decide was whether there was sufficient evidence before him to rebut the presumption in law of legitimacy. As to the admission of evidence to rebut the birth certificate, in the case of Burgess v. O'Keefe, 51 J.P. p. 504, quoted by the Magistrate, the child as in this case was born in hospital and the mother caused the child to be registered as that of her husband and herself. On appeal the bastardy order made by the Magistrate against the appellant was confirmed.

In our laws there is only one Bastardy Ordinance 13 of 1903. By section 4 of that Ordinance "The Magistrate shall hear the evidence of such woman (that is the complainant) and such other evidence as she may produce and shall also hear any evidence tendered by or on behalf of the person alleged to be the father," and subject to the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 54 of the Evidence Ordinance 1893 (this should be section 61, sub-section 2, and is clearly a clerical error) the Magistrate may adjudge the person summoned to be the putative father of such bastard child.

The sub-section referred to is, "No order against any person alleged to be the father of a bastard child can be made by a Magistrate's Court unless the evidence of the mother of the bastard child is corroborated in some material particular to the satisfaction of the Court."

The evidence in this case, apart from that of the respondent, was that respondent's husband left her in June, 1905, and had never been back to his wife. The child was born on 4th July, 1906, thus the period of gestation was covered, the respondent swore that the appellant came with her in that month and was visiting her in October, and her evidence was corroborated (if the witnesses were believed) as to the payment of money to the respondent within 12 months after the birth of the child. This is one circumstance mentioned in the Bastardy Ordinance as entitling a woman to make a complaint.

The evidence objected to as to the position of respondent in appellant's house was not inadmissible although it was not particularly material.

The whole question was one for the Magistrate to decide on the evidence adduced before him if there was legal evidence on which he could base his decision.

There was sufficient evidence if he believed it, as he clearly did, to justify him in adjudging the appellant the father of the bastard child. The order so far as it states the 48c. a week are to be paid to the mother so long as she shall live and shall be of sound mind and shall not be in any prison or under sentence of transportation is surplusage and I strike those words out. The appeal is dismissed with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

J. SMITH, Appellant.

versus

SEENANDANSING, Respondent.

A preliminary point was raised in this appeal that the service of reasons of appeal having been made on the executor of the respondent who is dead, the service is bad. In the case of Blakeway v. Tattershill, 1 Q.B. 1894, a similar difficulty arose, as in that case both appellant and respondent died before the appeal could be heard.

When the appeal came on for hearing it was ordered to stand over to allow the personal representative of the respondent who was dead, to be found. Probate of the respondent's will was granted. In the meantime the appellant also died and his will was proved. A motion was made for leave to add the legal representatives of both the appellant and respondent. Leave was given. This is clearly the proper procedure. I think this Court has power to entertain such an application, if made, as the party appealing has been prevented, by the act of God, from fulfilling all the requirements. I therefore let the appeal stand down, till leave to serve the executor of the respondent with reasons for appeal is obtained from the Court, which, I am of opinion, can be given under section 11 of The Appeals Ordinance. A service was effected without leave of the Court and without proof of the will. The costs of the day $5 must be paid by the appellant.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Actg. J.

J. T. GLASGOW, Appellant,
versus

J. L. WALTON, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the Magistrate of the North Western Judicial District, who fined the appellant $10 or one month hard labour on a charge of being in the unlawful possession of 6 oz., more or less, of gold mixed with a certain base.

The grounds of appeal are:—

1. That the defendant was on the 12th March, 1909, at the aforesaid Court, and by the said Magistrate acquitted for an alleged Summary Conviction Offence said to have been committed with respect to the said parcel of gold at the said time and place as alleged in the charge.

2. That illegal evidence has been admitted by the Magistrate's Court, and there is not sufficient legal evidence to sustain the decision after rejecting such illegal evidence, the illegal evidence being:—

(a) That of Jos. Lewis Walton, as to information said to have been received by him concerning alleged larceny of gold from the Barima Mine.

(b) The evidence of Joseph Koulen, concerning the gold seen in Court.

(c) Reference to the gold in Court as embodied in the evidence of G. F. de Sebastiani, and that of Edwin Allcock.

(d) The statements made by witness Low, and also the evidence of witness Dunn.

3. That the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury, there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict, there having been no proof at the trial that the gold in question was suspected of having been unlawfully obtained, nor was there any evidence of reasonable suspicion.

4. That the decision is erroneous in point of law: (a) Because the charge on which the defendant was convicted was not brought by any of the class of persons legally entitled to bring such charge;

(b) Because there was no evidence of suspicion that the defendant had unlawfully obtained the parcel of gold;

(c) Because the evidence did not support the charge brought against the defendant.

5. That other specific illegalities not hereinbefore-mentioned substantially affecting the merits of the case have been committed in the course of the proceedings in the case, for the parcel of gold was never tendered in evidence, although evidence was received by the Magistrate respecting it nor was there any evidence that the complainant had seen the defendant in possession of it or conveying it in any manner whatever, nor was there any proof that the quantities of gold seen in the Magistrate's Court was the gold referred to in the charge against the defendant.

Reason 1.

This reason is not tenable. The case quoted does not support the argument (Wemyss v. Hopkins 44 L. J. M.C. 100). In that case both the charges were for assault on the same facts. In Paley on Summary Convictions also quoted, the true test to show that such previous conviction or acquittal is a bar is whether the evidence necessary to support the second proceedings would have been sufficient to procure a legal conviction on the first.

The first charge brought against the appellant was for attempting to obtain by false pretences the sum of $25 for 6 oz. of a certain metal called amalgam, &c. The evidence on the second charge of unlawful possession would certainly not be sufficient to procure a legal conviction on the first.

Reason 2, is, I think, sustainable as to the evidence of Jos. Lewis Walton. As to the evidence of Koulen, there is this against its admissibility, that although he identified the gold in Court as part of that which in defendant's presence was said to have been brought out by Sebastiani and defendant, the latter saying nothing it went simply to prove a statement made by Allcock. As given, I do not think it was admissible except in so far as it went to prove that the parcel in Court was some of a parcel of gold handed to witness by Koulen.

Sebastiani's evidence was certainly not admissible as to the gold in Court, he parted with the gold he said Glasgow offered to him, and had not seen it since.

Allcock's evidence as to the gold in Court was not admissible for the same reason. The evidence of the witness Low was inadmissible except in so far as showing that when gold was pure, acid used to test it does not turn green.

Dunn's evidence as an expert was admissible as that of an expert in connection with the quality of the sample in Court.

As to reason 3 it depends entirely on the value of the evidence of Joseph Lewis Walton, for he was the person who lodged the information and it certainly does not appear to me that he was in a position to justify his bringing such a charge, as he was out of the Colony at the time of the possession and neither sold the gold nor knew personally anything connected with it. There is nothing to prevent a person seen in possession of anything reasonably suspected of having been stolen, from being brought before a Magistrate by summons, provided the circumstances justified a summary arrest which could only be effected by a person who saw the possession and was authorised to make the arrest, Hadley v. Perks, 35 L.J., M.C., 177).

From the evidence it is clear that the appellant was in the first instance charged with attempting to obtain by false pretences a sum of money and was later summoned under the Mining Ordinance for unlawful possession by the Warden, but the charge was withdrawn.

I think on Reason 3 the conviction should be quashed.

It is not necessary to deal with the other reasons for appeal but I may remark that there is nothing in the Mining Ordinance which prevents other than stated persons from bringing charges under the Summary Convictions Ordinance even if connected with gold.

I quash the conviction with costs.

REVIEW OF TAXATION.

THIS 13TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

Re Estate T. W. CHILCOTT, deceased.

This is an application for a review of taxation of costs as far as certain allowed items are concerned.

The objections to items 1, 4, 6, 11, 12, 13 and 15 are based on the ground that they are items necessitated by the employment of counsel, which employment was unnecessary, the matter not being of such magnitude and importance as warranted it, a solicitor having audience in insolvency matters before a single Judge, and even if counsel were necessary, he would not be entitled to items 11 and 4, but only No. 1.

The employment of counsel was sanctioned on the application of the Official Receiver, and, as counsel was retained by the applicant, there was just cause for counsel on the other side.

Item 1 is allowed.

Item 4 is disallowed as there is nothing to show what it was for or that it was necessary.

Item 6 is allowed.

Items 11 and 12 are allowed; the taxing officer must have been satisfied.

Item 16, being one fee as allowed by the taxing officer, is allowed.

Items 2 and 3 are objected to because the costs granted by the Court are merely the costs of the motion, and the Court's order does not cover anything done by the respondent, antecedent to his instructing his solicitor, and the items are outside the motion paper.

I disallow item 2 on the objection.

Item 5 is objected to because it is a novel one, and is neither in the tariff annexed to the Supreme Court Rules or the Insolvency Rules.

This is disallowed.

Item 13 is objected to as it is not provided for by the Rules.

This is disallowed.

Item 14 is reduced to 25 cents as it is a second copy. Each party must bear its own costs of this application.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 20TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

UGRASINGH AND ORS.

versus

FRASER.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate of the Berbice Judicial District, who convicted the appellants on a charge of causing actual bodily harm to the complainant and sentenced them to four months, hard labour.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. That the decision is erroneous in point of law;

(a) Because it was not proved that the defendants assaulted the complainant so as to cause him actual bodily harm.

(b) Because the evidence did not establish the complaint within the section and law under which the defendants were convicted.

2. That the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner as if the case was tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict.

The argument as addressed to the Court was in effect that it was Ugrasingh who caused the actual bodily harm and not the other defendants.

The Magistrate, in his reason for decision, held that he believed the evidence for the prosecution which established a charge of joint assault.

From the evidence for the prosecution which the Magistrate believed, it seems that Ugrasingh was the first to assault the complainant and that the most severe injuries were inflicted by him. After giving the second blow Ugrasingh called out to the other defendants who crossed by a punt and severely beat the complainant. According to the medical evidence the complainant had bruises on various parts of his head, shoulders, back and both arms . . . the bruising on all these spots was very severe and there was rawness of the skin which was excoriated in every instance, the injuries would cause considerable pain and discomfort.

There was ample evidence to sustain the verdict.
I dismiss the appeal with costs.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 27TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

BOODHANSING,

versus

NATHANIEL WILSON, HENRY MELVILLE,
WILLIAM ARGYLE (or ANGOYLE), MARY ANN ARGYLE (or ANGOYLE), spinster, ROBERT GRIFFITH, ALEXANDER
NATHANIEL PHILLIPS, SOLOMON
EMANUEL PHILLIPS AND JACOB VON HERMENSTEIN.

This is an application by and on behalf of William Argyle (or Angoyle), Robert Griffith, Alexander Nathaniel Phillips and Solomon Emanuel Phillips, four of the above-named defendants for an order striking out their names as defendants in the above action and extending the time for filing defence in this action to ten days after decision herein by the seven first defendants who appear by the same solicitor. The grounds of this application are:

1. That on the 29th day of May, 1909, the plaintiff issued writs of summonses against the above-named defendants.

2. That on the 1st July, 1909, the plaintiff left at the Registrar's Office, Georgetown, Demerara, a statement of claim for each of the said defendants.

3. That on the 30th July, 1909, the said seven defendants entered appearance to the said writs herein.

4. That it does not appear from the said claim that the plaintiff seeks any relief against the said four defendants or any of them and it is, therefore, vexatious, to make them parties to this action and they are improperly joined as such.

The plaintiff in his statement of claim, claims shortly; (a) from Jacob von Hermenstein payment of $110 08.

(b) That Jacob von Hermenstein, Nathaniel Wilson, and Henry Melville, be condemned to pass a valid transport of forty undivided acres of the land or in the alternative $500 damages from the named defendants. Mary Ann Angoyle is also said to have leased three half beds to plaintiff for a period of ten years. The land, the transport of which is opposed, is apparently held in undivided shares by all the defendants who have joined in the transport of the South half of the North half of the abandoned Plantation La Janette.

There is no claim against the four defendants who are applying to have their names struck out and there is nothing that I know of to prevent judgment being given if the plaintiff is successful against the shares of the remaining defendants for when things are the common property of several co-owners each of them can only sell or transfer by delivering to the purchaser to the extent of his own share (Voet Bk. XVIII., Tit. 1. 14.)

The order will be made to strike out the names of the four defendants William Argyle (or Angoyle), Robert Griffith, Alexander Nathaniel Phillips and Solomon Emanuel Phillips, and the time for filing the defence of the other defendants is extended to ten days from the date of this order. As the plaintiff asserts no claim against the four defendants and has unnecessarily joined them, I grant costs which I fix at $15 for their disbursements. If the other defendant had desired to be joined, the initiative should have been left to them.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 27TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

MINIGREE, Appellant,

versus

BOOKIE, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate in the Georgetown Judicial District, who dismissed a complaint of unlawfully making use of abusive language to the complainant whereby a breach of the peace may be occasioned.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. That the decision is erroneous in point of law, inasmuch as;

(a) Whether a breach of the peace may be occasioned is to be inferred from the nature of the words used by the defendant to the complainant.

(b) It is legally impossible to give direct evidence that a breach of the peace may be occasioned.

(c) Whether a breach of the peace may be occasioned, is to be presumed from the language used in the particular case.

(d) The abusive nature of the language used, of which evidence was given for the complainant, raises the presumption that a breach of the peace might have been occasioned.

(e) The abusive nature of the language used by the defendant of which evidence was given by the complainant and her witnesses gives rise to the inference that a breach of the peace might have been occasioned.

(f) The close proximity of the parties at the time the abusive words were uttered, if such be a circumstance, from which the possibility of a breach of the peace may be inferred was proved in the case.

The complaint in the present case was brought apparently under section 142 (1) of the Summary Conviction Ordinance, which is as follows:

"Every person who makes use of any threatening, abusive, insulting or obscene language, gesture or behaviour or says or sings any insulting or offensive song or ballad with intent to provoke any other person to commit a breach of the peace or whereby a breach of the peace may be occasioned, shall, on being convicted thereof, be liable to a penalty of fifty dollars."

It will be noticed that in this sub-section there is no mention of the words being used to any one and is more in keeping with the heading of the title "Disorderly Conduct;" it corresponds with section 54 of 2 and 3 Vic. c 47 (Police Metropolitan), which is: "Every person who shall use any threatening, abusive or insulting words or behaviour, with intent to provoke a breach of the peace or whereby a breach of the peace may be occasioned." Under both the English Act and the local Ordinance the power to arrest without warrant persons found committing this offence, is given to the police, Ordinance 20 of 1856, section 1, contained the same provision.

This all points to the conclusion that the offences under the sections and sub-sections named are for offences by words which are not directly used to a person. This view is strengthened by section 141, which is: "Every person who on or in view of any public way or public place insults any other person in his presence in such a manner as would be likely to provoke a person to commit a breach of the peace"; and section 142 (3) is: "Sends or delivers to any person any obscene writing, print, engraving, picture or other representation"; and (4) is: "Calls any person by a name other than his own with intent to insult or annoy such person."

Section 141 and section 142 (2) would cover cases of the nature of the one now being dealt with. The latter sub-section is very wide, and includes the use of any abusive, insulting, obscene or profane language, etc., to the annoyance of any person in any place.

I have thought it advisable to make these remarks in order to call attention to the provisions of the Ordinance.

In dealing with cases of this kind the Magistrate has to take into consideration not only the words used, but the circumstances as detailed before him, from which he can come to a conclusion as to whether a breach of the peace may be occasioned. I do not consider that the word may can be interpreted to mean at any time, but must be held to refer to the likelihood of a breach of the peace at the time, especially as a power to arrest without a warrant is given when persons are found committing the offence, and that being so, the circumstances attendant must be taken into consideration, such as the action of the parties, etc. In this case the appellant apparently "put the complaint in the lawyer's office the same day," and the respondent went into her house when the Rural Constable approached. Complainant was in her own house at her window and the appellant on the road.

The Magistrate, in his reasons for decision, said:—"No evidence has been given that a breach of the peace may be occasioned, and I decline to infer from the circumstances in this case that it necessarily must follow a breach of the peace may be occasioned."

I see no reason for disturbing the decision, but as the words proved to have been used were of a most indecent nature I grant no costs.

The respondent appeared in person.

IT is hereby notified that all vehicles conveying passengers to the Race Course on the 13th September, must proceed along Strand or Main Road, then through Essex or Vryheid Streets, and approach the Race Stands from the north and deposit their passengers at the gates leading into the Race Course after which they must not turn round on the Backdam, but may proceed down any of the side streets south of the Stands.

No vehicle will be allowed to remain on the Backdam road during the Races.

Vehicles must form up on the Backdam facing north awaiting their passengers, but not until after 5 o'clock, and they must be south of St. Ann's Street, keeping to the west side of the road; in succession they will come to the gates for their passengers, and then depart north turning west into Essex or Vryheid Streets.

It is to be hoped that all owners of vehicles will give every assistance in carrying out these Regulations so as to avoid confusion which would otherwise result owing to the very narrow back dam and roads approaching the Race Course.

These Regulations are made by the Inspector General of Police, under section 160 of Ordinance No. 17 of 1893, this 7th day of September, 1909.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 27TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1909.

J. PHOENIX, Appellant,
versus

C. H. KING, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the Magistrate of the South Essequibo Judicial District, who convicted the appellant on a charge of having in his possession a quantity of the substance known as bush rum, and inflicted a fine of $300 and costs or six month's hard labour and a further penalty of $2 or seven day's hard labour for the quantity of the substance called bush rum unlawfully had in possession by him.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. That the decision is erroneous in point of law;
(a) That there is no evidence that the flask tendered in evidence was the flask and its contents found under the barrel and alleged to have been in possession of defendant.

(b) The evidence does not disclose possession of the flask and its contents by the defendant at the time of the arrest.

(c) The evidence given at the trial was insufficient in law, to establish beyond reasonable doubt the alleged offence.

2. The decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence on the grounds already mentioned, in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury there would not have been sufficient evidence to maintain the verdict.

The Magistrate in his reasons for decision said he was satisfied that the flask which was found by the police under the barrel was the same "something" or "thing" that the defendant was seen to come out of the boat with, and place there. The certificate of the Government Analyst put in evidence, showed that the contents of that same something (a flask) contained bush rum. The Magistrate also said he saw no reason to disbelieve the evidence given by the police, "it being given in a quite straightforward manner and withstood the attack of a rigid cross-examination."

With regard to reason 1 (a) there was direct and ample evidence that the flask with its contents which were found under the barrel was the same as was tendered in evidence. P.C. Alexander James was present when the flask was found, saw it sealed with P.C. Seal 14, received it from Corporal Dewar, took it to the Government Analyst and received it back from him and tendered it in Court. The flask, according to the certificate, contained bush rum.

As to reason (b) if the evidence was believed, the appellant was seen coming from his boat with something which he put under the barrel. When the barrel was turned over the flask and nothing else was found under it.

If the flask was what the appellant put under the barrel there was evidence of possession by him, the mere putting down an article would not preclude a finding that the person so putting down the article had been in possession of it although not actually holding it at the time of arrest.

Reason (c) must be dealt with by the evidence which is, that of members of the Police Force.

It is true, no doubt, that in cases of this kind as in all where they prosecute, the police are not entirely disinterested parties, and that being so, their evidence is possibly liable to be viewed with a certain amount of caution as with all interested parties. But it does not follow that because the witnesses are members of the Police Force, they necessarily give false evidence.

In many instances it would be hazardous for the police to take with them outsiders. They receive information secretly and their movements have to be made with great circumspection. If an officer is a capable man he will use discretion so as not to be misled or imposed upon by his informer, that is to say, he will watch the movements of the suspected party, if that is possible, in order to connect him directly with the object to be dealt with. In this case the Corporal seeing the appellant leave the boat with something under his arm crept behind him and as he put the article he was carrying under the barrel the Corporal held him at once and turning the barrel over found the flask and nothing else under it. Defendant, according to the statement of Corporal Dewar, called out to a friend, "Oh Lord Wellington they catch me at last. They set some trap for me."

Corporal Iffill said the appellant called out for Wellington saying, "They set for me and catch me." According to P.C. James, the words were, "Oh God, my brother Wellington come, they have caught me at last." This witness said he saw the flask in appellant's hand. A good deal of evidence was led for the defence, and as the learned counsel for the appellant pointed out the question, was did the defendant put the rum there? The witnesses for the defence say they saw the flask taken from under the barrel, but only after a search was made by the hog-pen and at the water-side.

The case of Baboo Ballack v. Hill decided on 19th February, 1909, was quoted in support of the appeal but in that case there was no direct evidence of the appellant being seen to handle the article he was charged with possessing. Had this case rested on the mere finding of a flask of bush rum under a barrel, near by which appellant passed or even stood up, a reasonable doubt as to his having been in possession of it would certainly have resulted. But, unless the witnesses for the prosecution were deliberately stating what was not true, all the circumstances as detailed by them connected the appellant directly with the possession of the flask of bush rum. The Magistrate expressed a very strong opinion as to the straightforward way in which the police gave their evidence and as he had them before him it is not for this Court to say he was wrong in his estimate of their credibility.

I dismiss the appeal with costs. Conviction affirmed.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 3RD DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1909.

LASHLEY AND DE HART, Appellants,
versus

ABRAHAM FORD, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate in the Georgetown Judicial District who gave judgment for the plaintiff for $23 84 and costs, on a claim for work and labour done and services rendered by the plaintiff to the defendant.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. That the decision is erroneous in point of law;
(a) Because the Magistrate decided the case without taking evidence.

(b) Because the sum of $23 87 having been attached and paid under a writ, the defendants were duly discharged from further judgment of the said sum.

In the copy of the proceedings there are only statements by the Solicitors who appeared in the case by which it appears that the debt was admitted but payment was pleaded, such payment being by attachment under writ 1037 of 1908, of the Georgetown Magistrate's Court. The Solicitor for the plaintiff said no demand was made on him, the plaintiff, that the man who went with the bailiff had no authority in writing, and that the levy was not made by the judgment creditor. The Solicitor for the defendant stated the bailiff did the wrong proceeding without taking the proper steps. The necessity for a demand was admitted and it was argued that the person who authorised the levy would be liable. The defendants had paid the money under the process of the Court and their liability ceased.

The Solicitor for the plaintiff then argued that all the Court had to do was to say whether the plaintiff was entitled to his money or not and to enquire whether the bailiff had acted rightly in proceeding without making a demand.

Decision was reserved and after two days judgment was given for the plaintiff. When the appeal was first called the Court's attention was drawn to the fact that the Magistrate had not sent in his reasons for decision. This has been remedied, the explanation being non-notification of the signing of the recognisance to prosecute the appeal, the Magistrate in the interim having gone to another district.

The Magistrate, in his reasons, says he had referred to the certified copy of the writ put in. That he finds the attachment of the debt was irregular, there having been no demand made by the bailiff from the defendant A. Ford, before proceeding in execution.

There is nothing on the proceedings to show that the writ of execution was ever put in; it is attached to the papers but certainly did not form any part of the proceedings, such as they were.

The Magistrate in his reasons, also says he set aside the levy and alludes to some enquiry made as to the person who requested the bailiff to attach the debt.

I refer the case back to the Magistrate to rehear and determine the same, drawing his attention to the fact that there were no proceedings apparently to set aside the levy.

I grant costs of the appeal.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

IT is hereby notified that all vehicles conveying passengers to the Race Course on the 13th
September, must proceed along Strand or Main Road, then through Essex or Vryheid Streets, and approach the Race Stands from the north and on the Backdam, but may proceed down any of the side streets south of the Stands.

No vehicle will be allowed to remain on the Backdam road during the Races.

Vehicles must form up on the Backdam facing north awaiting their passengers, but not until after 5 o'clock, and they must be south of St. Ann's Street, they will come to the gates for their passengers,

Registrar's Office, British Guiana, Georgetown, the

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 3RD DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1909.

NAJOO, Appellant,
versus

BACHIA, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate of the Berbice Judicial District, who awarded the respondent, the plaintiff in the Court below, the sum of $35 as damages and costs, on a complaint that the defendant illegally and wrongfully converted to her use, one brown cow and one brown calf, of the value of $35, and thereby deprived plaintiff of the same.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. That the decision is erroneous in point of law;
(a) Because there is no evidence of conversion of the goods, the subject matter of the action by the defendant.

(b) Because it was proved that the plaintiff took possession of the said goods and there is no evidence to connect the defendant with the conversion of them.

(c) That the plaintiff has mistaken her remedy on the evidence and even if the Magistrate believes the evidence tendered by the plaintiff, it does not establish a case of conversion against the defendant.

(d) That the evidence not having established the claim before the Court, under section 19, of the Petty Debt Recovery Ordinance, 1893, the Magistrate should have non-suited the case or entered judgment for the defendant, as the proof of the plaintiff's case was not satisfactory.

2. That the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner, as if the case had been tried by a jury, there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict.

From the evidence before the Magistrate, there was a conflict as to the ownership and apparently, from the reasons for decision, the Magistrate believed the animals belonged to plaintiff. Those reasons are not very clear, they are as follows.

"I believe the evidence tendered by the plaintiff and disbelieve most of the evidence tendered by the defendant. I consider the plaintiff has established her case against the defendant."

According to the evidence for the plaintiff, the animals, the subject of the claim, with others were agisted in the defendant's name to save a portion of the pasturage fees. The plaintiff took over her cattle with the exception of the brown cow and calf, which, it is said, were sold to one Nubbebux, who placed them in his pen. No money was paid and no paper was made out, but a bargain was made and a price fixed. The plaintiff, hearing of this, went with two men and took the animals from the pen of Nubbebux and put them in her own pen, from which they were subsequently taken during her absence. The plaintiff herself said they were in Nubbebux's pen; her witness, who assisted in taking them, said "defendant has them now." The wrongful sale was a conversion; all subsequent acts were caused by it and the plaintiff was deprived of her right to immediate possession. Apparently the Magistrate was satisfied that the sale was made although his reasons for decision are somewhat vague and indefinite.

There was evidence that the cow and calf were the property of the plaintiff and that they were sold to one Nubbebux who took possession of them. The Magistrate said he believed the evidence for the plaintiff and where there is a conflict he is the judge of the credibility of the witnesses. This being so, I do not disturb the decision.

I dismiss the appeal with costs.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,

16th September, 1909.

THE following Circular despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies on subject of the investigation of Cancer throughout the Empire is published for general information:—

CIRCULAR.

Downing Street,
3rd August, 1909.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you that the Executive Committee of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund have expressed the opinion that it is desirable again to draw the attention of the British Colonies and Protectorates to the importance attaching to the investigation of cancer throughout the Empire on a uniform basis; the reports received during the past five years having been of the highest value in extending medical knowledge of cancer, and in bringing to light its association with peculiar forms of chronic irritation consequent upon the practice of native customs.

2. Great importance attaches to investigating the occurrence of cancer in widely separated geographical areas, and in divergent races of mankind, in accordance with a uniform plan, and over a prolonged period of time. The valuable information already provided by the British Colonies and Protectorates has attracted the attention of authorities in Foreign Countries, who, while not enjoying equal opportunities for such extensive investigations unanimously emphasise their unique value.

3. The Committee desire to repeat that it is essential that wherever it is difficult to conduct a satisfactory microscopical examination of tumours, reports should be accompanied by small pieces of the tumour placed in formalin immediately after removal from the body. These, like the reports, should be forwarded to Dr. Bashford, General Superintendent, Imperial Cancer Research Fund, Savoy Street, Victoria Embankment, London, W.C.

4. Suitable tubes packed in wooden cases and conforming with the regulations of the General Post Office will be despatched to any Colony or Medical Officer whenever it is probable that such a course will ensure the transmission of specimens; and, when desired, reports on the nature of the tumours will be sent to the Medical Officers who have provided the specimens.

5. At the same time in appraising the value of the reports of the occurrence of cancer in aboriginal races and in different parts of the Empire, microscopical examination is of the first importance, not only because of the variations of the extent to which cancer is recorded, but also because of the uncertain nature of many of the diseases common in the Tropics.

6. The Executive Committee, as stated in my predecessor's despatch of the 30th of June, 1906, are fully cognisant of the difficulties with which Medical Officers have to contend in discovering cancer in aboriginals and in obtaining and forwarding specimens, as well as of the difficulties in the way of obtaining definite data in regard to the age of the patient and the history of the illness. They wish, however, to point out that it is just where the requisite evidence is difficult to obtain that it possesses most value. The total number of cases of cancer observed in native races being still small, the investigations should be continued until adequate evidence of the frequency of the disease has been obtained, or an explanation arrived at as to the reasons for its real or apparent rarity. The lower average age of the natives examined may account for the rarity of the disease in some instances, but this explanation is not valid in others. In many aboriginal races almost all the cases recorded have been instances of external cancer. The apparent greater rarity of internal cancer points to the probability that the disease where situated in internal organs will be discovered only after death as the result of post-mortem examinations made by the Medical Officers themselves. Particular attention should be directed to sites of the body subject to various forms of chronic irritation in consequence of the practice of native customs.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient, humble Servant.

CREWE.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 10TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1909.

TEEKA, Appellant,

versus

GUNNING, Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of a Magistrate, who convicted the appellant on a charge of unlawfully and maliciously wounding the complainant, and sentenced him to two months, imprisonment with hard labour.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. Because illegal evidence has been admitted by the Magistrate's Court, and there is not sufficient legal evidence to sustain the decision after rejecting such illegal evidence.

The following statement in the evidence of Horatia Norman Greaves, is inadmissible, and is what is referred to under this head, viz., the words "He complained of a great deal of pain when he came."

2. That the decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence in like manner, as if the case had been tried by a jury, there would not have been sufficient evidence to convict.

Because—
(a) The evidence of James Andrew Greenidge, as to the appellant's statement to him referred to in the Magistrate's reasons for decision was entirely uncorroborated.

(b) The evidence for the complainant was contradicted by his own witnesses and by himself.

Firstly. With respect to the circumstances under which the appellant was asked to leave the room in question.

Secondly. As to the character, condition and presence of the several people alleged to have been present in the room where the scuffle took place on the evening in question.

Thirdly. As to the assault by him on the appellant.

3. The decision is erroneous in point of law;

Because—

(a) The evidence was insufficient in law to establish that the complainant was unlawfully and maliciously wounded by the appellant.

(b) The evidence does not establish that the complainant had received such serious hurt or injury to his health, as a result of the wound as would in law, sustain the charge brought by him against the defendant.

(c) The evidence establishes that the fight between the complainant and the appellant, and the mêlée that ensued occurred in a place of ill-repute, in drunken company, and as the result of an attack by the complainant on the appellant.

(d) The evidence establishes such extreme provocation on the part of the complainant, as would suffice to reduce the charge made even if proved, which is denied—to one of common assault.

(e) The evidence establishes that whatever blows were inflicted on the complainant were given in self-defence.

Dealing with the first reason of appeal it is laid down in Taylor on evidence par. 581 "In actions or indictments for assault what a man has said about himself to his surgeon is evidence to show what he suffered by reason of his assault." Horatia Norman Greaves was the Doctor, who attended the complainant, what was said to him therefore with regard to bodily feeling was admissible. As to reason 2 (a) the fact that the evidence of James Andrew Greenidge was uncorroborated, does not prevent its being believed. It was to the effect that as he Teeka had been put out of the room by Gunning, "he would give him something to-night for which he would be very sorry afterwards."

As to reason 2 (b) there is no doubt that there were some variations in the evidence, as to why the appellant was told to leave the room in which the occurrence took place, but the general trend of the evidence showed that the appellant was asked to leave, the appellant himself said he was pushed and was called a "coolie." The Magistrate being the judge of the facts, could form his own opinion as to the credibility of the witnesses, and how far to believe them.

There was ample evidence that the complainant was wounded and that in, at any rate one place by some sharp narrow cutting instrument. "The wound was quite clean cut." Grievous bodily harm was not an element in the charge.

That there was drinking and unseemly conduct was clearly proved, as well as a conflict between complainant and defendant, indeed a witness for the defence stated, "The only person Gunning had a conflict with was Teeka."

The evidence also showed that Teeka went out when he was spoken to by Gunning and returned, after which the wounding took place.

As to (a) (b) and (c), there was nothing to justify the use of a knife, and the law would presume malice.

The mere fact of the complainant having been wounded, and of that there was ample proof, would sustain the charge. One wound had to be stitched and was probed to a depth of $\frac{3}{4}$ inch, the one said to have been caused by some narrow cutting instrument. If Teeka was the only person Gunning fought with and Gunning was so wounded, the Magistrate was quite justified in coming to the conclusion that it was Teeka who inflicted the wound.

(d) It was within the province of the Magistrate, if he felt he could rightly do so, to reduce the charge to one of common assault, but he says in his reasons for decision, that he saw nothing which could justify him in so reducing it.

The punishment inflicted was imprisonment. The Magistrate had no power to impose a fine.

There only remains reason (e):

There was no evidence to show that the blow or blows inflicted with a narrow sharp cutting instrument were necessitated in self-defence.

It was argued that compensation was the right thing to ask for, but the learned counsel for the respondent, while not dissenting to a reduction of the penalty, did not entertain the idea of compensation.

By section 31 of Ordinance 13 of 1893, the Court has power to modify the decision of the Magistrate. (Allman v. Bruce, 30th March, 1900; and Carrington v. De Cairns, 26th October, 1901.) The first case was one of assault on a peace officer where a fine could be imposed by the Magistrate, but the second was a case of assault causing actual bodily harm, where per-empty imprisonment is the penalty. In this second case, the sentence of 3 months, imprisonment was (on the respondent's counsel expressing his willingness that compensation might be given), modified to a fine of one shilling, $35 compensation being paid into Court, the Chief Justice remarking that from the evidence no dangerous weapon was used, the bodily harm being inflicted by two blows from a paddle in a dispute between the two men who were said to have been previously on good terms. Continuing "The offence is not one of a distinctly public nature but is more of a nature of a private injury to an individual for which damages might have been recovered in a civil action."

The present case differs from that case, inasmuch as a sharp cutting instrument was used and in dealing with the questions of modifying the decision, would I be justified in doing so under all the circumstances?

It is true no doubt, that the occurrence took place while proceedings of a festive nature were going on in a room attached to a public bar, but the use of a dangerous instrument is always deprecated, here a wound in the chest was inflicted at least, three-quarters of an inch deep which required stitching, and the plaintiff suffered considerably. I do not feel I should be justified, when such an instrument is used, in treating the decision as one which I ought to modify.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 10TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1909.

R. HILL, Appellant,

versus

E. G. SMITH, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who dismissed a charge brought against the respondent for having in his unlawful possession a quantity of spirits, to wit, 3 quarts, contrary to law.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. The decision is erroneous in point of law, in as much as;

(a) The evidence was sufficient in law to prove that the defendant was guilty of the offence charged.

(b) There was sufficient evidence of possession, by the defendant, of spirits exceeding in quantity a reputed pint to call upon the defendant for his defence and the Magistrate should have called upon the defendant for his defence and should not have dismissed the case.

(c) The defendant not being called upon for his defence, or to make such proof as may bring him within the exception of the Spirits Ordinance, sec. 93 (2) his possession of the spirits exceeding in quantity a reputed pint must be deemed to be unlawful, and the Magistrate was wrong in dismissing the complaint on the merits.

(d) The evidence established physical and mental possession by the defendant of three quarts of spirits which from the evidence exceeds a reputed pint.

The Magistrate in his decision said, "I am not satisfied by the evidence produced by the prosecution that defendant was in possession of spirits exceeding in quantity a 'reputed pint' as required by law to make possession unlawful. That is my only reason for deciding as I have done."

"I therefore dismiss the charge on the merits."
The section of the Ordinance (1 of 1905) under which the charge was undoubtedly brought, is as follows:

93 (1) Every person unlawfully possessing spirits shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and to a further penalty of two dollars for every gallon or part of a gallon of spirits so possessed and such spirits shall be seized and shall be forfeited.

(2) Every person possessing spirits exceeding in quantity a reputed pint shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be in the unlawful possession thereof, unless;

(a) He is a distiller, compounder or authorized methyler or retailer and it has come legally into his possession as such; or,

(b) He is in possession under permit for its removal or having been legally empowered to remove it is in possession thereof for the purposes of such removal; or,

(c) Such spirits have been legally sold, delivered or disposed of to him, under section 13 of the Wine, &c., Licence Ordinance, 1898, or under sub-section (2) of section 38 of this Ordinance; and if such spirits have been obtained in separate quarts from any retailer at separate times and not under a permit, the purchaser has obtained a receipt in writing for the purchase money paid for the same and showing the quantity of spirits and which for the time when it was paid (sic.).

(d) He is the holder of a special licence from the Governor-in-Council to distil spirits in accordance with section 15 of this Ordinance."

The latter part of (c) is clearly misprinted, but this does not affect the question now before the Court.

In arguing the first reason for appeal the learned Acting Solicitor General urged that by sub-section 1, the quantity was not an element in a charge of unlawful possession, as the onus of proving such unlawful possession lay on the complainant, but that when a person possessed spirits exceeding in quantity a reputed pint, the onus was put on the person, so possessing of proving that such possession came within the exceptions, so as to make it lawful.

The difficulty in thus interpreting section 93, is raised in my mind, by the use of the words "shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to be in the unlawful possession thereof." There is no doubt that there is no law which makes unlawful possession of spirits lawful, but when the words referred to are taken in connection with those in sub-section 5, "possessing any quantity of the substance known as bush rum," it would seem that for prosecutions under this particular section, "a reputed pint" is the unit.

It is unnecessary, however, for me to decide this point as the whole of the argument is really directed to the issue whether it being proved that the defendant was possessed of more than a reputed pint of rum, the Magistrate should not have called on him to prove that his possession was within the exceptions.

The first point is, what is a reputed pint? Is it something definite or indefinite? If the latter, must it be something below the imperial pint, the standard measure? According to the ordinary meaning of the words "reputed pint" they indicate something called a pint but not an imperial pint i.e. the standard measure.

No legal definition is given of the capacity of a reputed pint, or a reputed quart, both these terms are used in English Ordinances (see. 23 and 24 Vict., c. 114 5, 169 and 1 Ed., 7 ch., 27 sec. 2) but they are used in connection with the word "bottle" or "vessel" and relate to offences in selling, there being bottles or vessels of reputed pint or reputed quart capacity.

In the case of Farndale v. Dillon 2 K.B. 1907, dealing with a case under section 2 of 1 Ed. 7 where a reputed pint is the unit, Darling J. defines inferentially this reputed pint as "a pint at least of such intoxicating liquors as are ordinarily sold in corked and sealed vessels such as a pint of champagne or of bottled beer." Thus following what appears as I have stated to be the gauge of a reputed pint, that is to say not a recognized exact measure, but the capacity of a vessel containing a quantity considered to be a pint, but not an imperial pint. Such quantity possibly varying according to the custom of the distillers, brewers, or wine growers, who bottle their productions and being accepted by the purchaser as a pint. In all the cases I can find where liquor was sold under the restrictive Ordinances mentioned bottles were taken to be filled and it is easy to see that when the terms, vessels or bottles are used in the Ordinance there is no difficulty in deciding, when evidence is led, of a pint bottle being taken to be filled, that when it has been filled, it contains the quantity known as a reputed pint.

In the case of Farndale v. Dillon referred to, a boy entered an inn with a pint bottle for the purpose of obtaining a half pint of beer which was supplied but the bottle was not sealed or corked and it was on this point that the case was sent back to the Magistrate. No question was raised at the hearing as to the quantity of liquor for which was half a pint, this Lord Alvestone, C.J., held was not a reputed pint. Logically on these findings a reputed pint, if gauged by a bottle's capacity, would be something over a half-pint (Imperial), and might be anything from just over that half-pint, to nearly equally, but under an imperial pint.

The next point to be considered, is whether the evidence given was sufficient to establish possession of a quantity in excess of a reputed pint, thus throwing on the defendant the onus of proving that it was within the exceptions of sub-section (2) of section 93 of the Ordinance.

The complaint was of having in his unlawful possession, a quantity of spirits, to wit, 3 quarts contrary to law."

A preliminary objection was raised at the hearing before the Magistrate, that the charge disclosed no offence. This objection was overruled and I think rightly so for even if the unit of unlawful possession is a reputed pint, it is obvious that 3 quarts are over or above that quantity.

Evidence was admitted as to what a reputed pint was and the definition given varied from any quantity not exceeding 13½ ozs. (McInroy's evidence), to anything over 10 ozs., up to 13½ ozs. (Gomes evidence), and from 12 to 13 ozs. (Lionel McPherson's evidence). Evidence as to what a reputed is, is admissible. In a case of Hiddell v. Neilson 5 F. (just case). Court of Justiciary, (these reports are not in our Library) referred to, in the Annual Digest, 1904, evidence was clearly given of the capacity of what was called a "schooner," that is a glass tumbler capable of containing about one-third of a quart imperial measure. A similarly indefinite capacity to that of a reputed pint, which from the evidence in this case was well under the imperial pint measure.

According to the evidence for the prosecution there were found under the clothes on which the defendant's head was resting, (he was lying on a bench in his room, one half bottle of rum sealed under the bench, two small bottles sealed, and three full and sealed half bottles under a can in the same room which defendant's wife covered. In the bed-room were one small bottle and three-quarters of another bottle, also a transparent bottle and one with about four cents worth. Four other bottles were found under the mud outside the house and a half bottle filled in a drain, all the bottles contained rum. One large bottle excepted, one witness said: There were thirteen bottles in all.

On being tested and measured it was found that

No. 1 contained	11½ ozs. of rum	43.3 u.p.
No. 2 "	11½ " " "	49.4 u.p.
No. 3 "	12 " " "	48.9 u.p.
No. 4 "	13 " " "	30.3 u.p.
No. 5 "	12½ ozs. of what
	not stated	46.7 u.p.
No. 6 "	13 ozs. do.	46.7
No. 9 "	9½ ozs. of rum	37.3
No. 12 & 13 "	2 ozs. too small to test in all two imperial gross (quarts) and 5 ounces.

No. 7 contained 12 ozs., 23.6 u.p., this smelled very strongly of bay rum.

No. 8 contained 13 ozs., 23.3 u.p., also smelling of bay rum.

No. 10 contained 6 ozs. of spirits at 41.9 u.p., smelling strongly of aniseed. The bay rum was one imperial pint and 15 ozs. The thirteen bottles contained three imperial quarts and six ounces of spirits according to the officer who tested them.

It is not clear from the evidence, which of these bottles were found in the mud and in the drain, but at least five were found there, whether they were bay rum or ordinary rum is also not shown.

The Magistrate, in his decision, said he was not satisfied by the evidence produced by the prosecution that defendant was in possession of spirits exceeding in quantity a reputed pint, as required by law to make possession unlawful, presumably meaning that he had spirits in his possession but not in quantity sufficient to cast on him the burden of proving it, came within the exception of sub-section 2, the charge being practically possession of over a reputed pint of spirits which had to be proved by the prosecution. The Magistrate added "that is my only reason for deciding as I have done" I therefore dismiss the charge on the merits.

Spirits as defined by the Ordinance mean "Spirits of any description" and all the bottles contained rum or spirits of a kind of a low strength. The Ordinance also defines "a gallon" as meaning an "imperial gallon" which measure is named in connection with the further penalty under section 93 (1).

As was pointed out in Black v. Fraser, 4th May, 1907, it is difficult to see how the enactment can be impartially applied in cases of possession of spirits when the definition of a reputed pint varies so much. It is true that in cases where the quantity found in the possession of a person equals an imperial gallon or even three imperial quarts it would follow that it was an excess of a reputed pint (that is if a measure something under an imperial pint) yet in another case when the quantity was twelve ozs. a conviction could hardly follow, when the evidence went to show a reputed pint might be thirteen and a half ozs., and the charge was for having over a reputed pint.

No attempt in this case was made to prove unlawful possession so that the measure, a reputed pint, an uncertain measure in itself, was the determining factor.

It was said that the finding of the Magistrate was confined to the measure, a reputed pint, but from the reasons before the Court it would appear as if the Magistrate was not satisfied as to the quantity of spirits found in possession of the defendant and there is no question from the evidence that a great deal of the spirits were found in such a position as to raise a reasonable doubt as to their being in the possession of the defendant.

The Magistrate admitted evidence as to what a reputed pint measured, and it is to be presumed he found as a fact that he was not satisfied that the quantity found in the possession of the defendant exceeded in quantity a reputed pint. The case was dismissed on the merits—not being satisfied, could only mean, not satisfied with the evidence put before him.

The Court can only deal with the record as it is as the Magistrate found on facts.

I dismiss the appeal with costs.

OF BRITISH GUIANA.

Published by Authority of His Excellency the Governor.

GEORGETOWN, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29TH, 1909.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 24TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1909.

M. PERSAUD DOOBAY

versus
BAILY.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $250 damages for injuries sustained through the unlawful acts of the defendant.

The defence is a denial of all the allegations in the statement of claim, and an alternative plea that if the injuries were sustained by the plaintiff, he was guilty of contributory negligence.

As is usual in cases of this kind, there is a great conflict of evidence.

The plaintiff's story is, that he was tenant of the defendant, and owed a month's rent. Not being able to pay it when demanded, although he promised to do so in a couple of days, the defendant threatened, amongst other things, that she would have the steps removed. Plaintiff occupied a room or rooms on the upper storey of the house about 6 or 7 feet from the ground. On the 12th March, when he retired for the night, the steps were in good order; just before he retired he saw the defendant's son with a lamp looking up.

The next morning plaintiff got up early, about five or half past five o'clock, and proceeded to go down the steps. A woman named Hamedan was cooking and plaintiff looked towards her; as he reached where the 3rd or 4th steps ought to have been, he fell to the ground; the steps had been removed. In falling, he says that the pit of his stomach was struck and he sustained a contusion on the knee, and also injured his hand; on recovering himself he saw the defendant at her door; she rendered no assistance, but locked her door and went away.

Plaintiff's wife called out and some of the neighbours came. Plaintiff went to Belfield in a cart to report the matter and on his return saw the missing "treaders" on the ground.

Plaintiff is corroborated in his account of the threat by a witness who was told by defendant to tell him that she would remove the steps. Hamedan saw him fall. Diana Mingo saw plaintiff leaning on the railing, he said he was hurt; she also saw defendant lock her door and go in the room accompanied by her little son.

This witness also said that when the Constable Seals came, he asked defendant, who had returned, why she took out the steps; defendant denied doing so, but Mingo told her she had heard her say she would take out the steps. Defendant again denied taking out the steps and said if they knew she had done so, they could search her room. The suggestion was adopted, and Hamedan went in. At first nothing was found, but on a second look, the treaders were seen wrapped up in a bag under a "kuttea"; they were taken out and were seen by the several witnesses who gave evidence. That they were the treaders which had been removed, was proved by the fact that later on they were replaced on the steps.

Plaintiff saw Dr. Nedd twice and says he was laid up for two months more or less, not confined to his bed, but unable to work at his tailoring, in consequence of pain when leaning over his treadle sewing machine. The doctor was not called as he was summoned too late to enable him to make arrangements to attend. The solicitor for the plaintiff elected to proceed without this evidence.

The defence is that Hamedan put the treaders in the room of defendant, while she was absent; also that defendant, noticing the treaders were missing, called out to warn plaintiff, but could not make him hear.

The witness as to Hamedan putting the treaders in the room is defendant's son, a boy of nine years of age, but intelligent.

Defendant missing the treaders says she called a constable, to whom she reported their loss; he searched round and about, but could not find them.

The Constable Noor Mohamed says that when he went in at 6 a.m., Hamedan said the treaders were in defendant's house, and he in consequence searched but found nothing.

All the defendant's witnesses say that there was nothing wrong with defendant, and it was attempted to be shown that he went to his rice field some two miles off immediately after the occurrence, but this was not satisfactorily proved. The most peculiar part of the defence was that the treaders were removed during the night by some one unknown to the defendant, and that they were put in defendant's room by the woman Hamedan. But I cannot credit this story for the witness Rural Constable Noor, who was called by the defendant, at 6 a.m., states that Hamedan told him then that the treaders were in the room of the defendant, and that he made a search there in the house; whereas the defendant herself states that Noor searched under and about the house, but does not mention the fact that Hamedan said the boards were in the room. The boy Ibrahim, who said he saw Hamedan take the boards into his mother's room, corroborates the witnesses for the plaintiff, that the boards were found under the "kuttea." The defendant herself denied having any such article of furniture.

There are discrepancies in the evidence as given by the witnesses on both sides, but I am satisfied that the plaintiff did fall through the hole of the stairs caused by the removal of two of the treaders, and that the treaders were found in the room of the defendant, and were not put there by Hamedan. These facts coupled with the threat to remove the steps, convince me that the steps were removed by defendant herself or by her orders. I am also satisfied that the Doctor attended the plaintiff, but in the absence of the medical evidence, it is difficult to form an idea what injuries the plaintiff sustained as according to his own testimony, the Doctor only saw him twice. I cannot believe he was injured as much as he states, especially as he went to his rice field a week or two after the fall.

The act of the defendant was a wanton and unjustifiable one, and I award the plaintiff $50, but without costs, as the case might well have been brought in the Magistrate's Court.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 24TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1909.

LALTA PERSAUD, Appellant,

versus

RAMOTAR, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District, who dismissed an interpleader claim made by the appellant, giving costs $1 41 and $5, damages.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. That the decision is erroneous in point of law;
(a) The plaintiff having proved possession in him of the goods at time of levy, he was entitled to judgment.

(b) The plaintiff having proved that he was in possession aforesaid, the onus of proving that the goods levied on were the property of the plaintiff did not lie on plaintiff.

(c) The plaintiff having proved that he was in possession aforesaid, the onus of proving that the goods are the property of the execution debtor lies on the defendant.

(d) That the Court, having evidence of possession, was bound to call on defendant for an answer.

(e) That the Court, in an interpleader action, was bound in evidence of possession being given to call on the other side for defence.

(f) That the plaintiff was entitled to succeed on the case as it stood.

The Magistrate, in his reasons for decision, expressed a strong opinion that the claim was a bogus one and that he was not satisfied as to the possession. As was pointed out by the counsel for the respondent, the articles claimed were far more numerous than those actually levied on according to the bailiff's return. As was held by me, in the case of Binda v. Ramcharita, 16th March, 1903, the procedure in the Petty Debt Court, is different from the procedure in the Supreme Court. In the former, the claimant is invariably made the plaintiff. The claim is to be heard and determined in a summary way as in an ordinary action. (Section 57 (2)).

By section 19 of the Ordinance (1) "If on the day of hearing or at any adjournment of the Court or cause, the plaintiff does not appear or sufficiently excuse his absence, the cause shall be struck out; and if he appears but does not make proof of his claim to the satisfaction of the Court, the Magistrate may non-suit him or give judgment for the defendant; and in either case when the defendant appears and does not admit the claim, the Magistrate may award the defendant, in addition to costs, such further sum not exceeding five dollars by way of compensation for his trouble and attendance, as the Magistrate in his discretion may think just.

"(2), If plaintiff does not appear but defendant does appear and admits the cause of action to the full amount, &c., judgment may be given."

By section 20. "If the plaintiff alone appears, and the defendant does not appear, or sufficiently excuse his absence or neglects to answer when called in Court, the Magistrate may, on due proof of service of the summons, proceed to the hearing and determination of the cause on the part of the plaintiff only."

By section 21 (1) "If on the day of hearing both parties appear, the Magistrate shall read out the plaint to the defendant and shall require him to make his answer or defence thereto."

By (2) "Witnesses on both sides shall, unless the Court otherwise expressly orders, be called and placed out of Court and out of hearing, &c., and;

(3) "The Court shall then proceed to hear the plaintiff, and such witnesses as he may examine, and such other evidence as he may adduce and also to hear the defendant and such witnesses as he may examine and such other evidence as he may adduce in his defence, and also to hear such witnesses as the plaintiff may, with leave of the Court, examine in reply.

It would be difficult to reconcile sections 19 and 21, if the former is taken to permit the Magistrate to give judgment of non-suit, or for the defendant immediately on the close of plaintiff's case if he does not make proof of his claim, to the satisfaction of the Magistrate, especially when power is given to award compensation to the defendant, if he appears and does not admit the claim, by way of compensation for his trouble and attendance. But if it is taken to mean, that the defendant under any circumstances must be heard in order to allow him to state as a witness on oath, that he does not admit the claim, the two sections can be reconciled.

This point is inferentially raised by reason (e), hence my dealing with it.

All the reasons of decision, are based on the allegation that the possession was proved as having been in the claimant, or, at any rate, that there was evidence given of the articles being in his possession. The Magistrate found, there was no such possession, but as he practically confined his reasons to possession of the cattle, whereas other articles were levied on, I consider it necessary that the evidence of the bailiff should be taken, as to where he took the articles from. I refer the case back to the Magistrate to take such evidence, to be produced by claimant, as well as that of defendant, and to adjudicate afresh. I grant no costs of the appeal.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 24TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1909.

GODARAJ, Appellant,

versus

SUTARAJ, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Police Magistrate of Georgetown, who awarded the respondent (plaintiff) in the Court below, the sum of $40 and costs and fee $4 as damages and pecuniary compensation for injuries suffered by him in consequence of defendant's dog biting him.

The reasons for appeal are :

1. The decision was erroneous in point of law, inasmuch as ;

(a) There is not sufficient evidence to support the Magistrate's opinion that the plaintiff had gone on defendant's premises at the request of a woman living upstairs in defendant's house.

(b) The plaintiff was not on defendant's premises at the invitation of defendant or his agent or any one on defendant's premises, and was not where he had a right to be when he got bitten.

(c) The plaintiff was negligent in entering defendant's yard knowing of the presence of a dog without first making enquiries as to whether it was chained or not.

(d) The plaintiff did not exercise due care and caution in going in and out of the premises and his injuries were substantially due to his negligence and want of care.

(e) It was proved that the dog was chained to the old counter when plaintiff was bitten by him.

(f) The decision is based on alleged discrepancies of defendant's witnesses and not upon the proof of his claim by plaintiff and his witnesses.

2. The decision is altogether unwarranted by the evidence, in like manner as if the case had been tried by a jury, there would not have been sufficient evidence to sustain the verdict on the grounds already mentioned and also, inasmuch as ;

(a) The plaintiff's statement that the defendant's son took the dog and chained it up as it is contradicted by his statement that the first time he saw the defendant's son that day was in the store in Water Street.

(b) The plaintiff's, Moonsammy and Mahatoo's statement about the presence of a policeman in defendant's yard when plaintiff was bitten are contradictory and are denied by the witness D'Ornellas.

(c) The evidence of the plaintiff's witnesses Mahatoo and Moonsammy was so unworthy of belief that the Magistrate ignored it altogether and the plaintiff's evidence is in the same category.

(d) Plaintiff's evidence as to his being called by a woman could not stand the test of cross-examination.

The whole of these reasons are based on the want of evidence of such weight as to justify the Magistrate in concluding therefrom, that is, without drawing an inference which the law deems unreasonable, that the particular fact in issue had been established. (Quinta v. Swain, 2nd December, 1882), or that where there is a mere scintilla of evidence the case ought not to be left to a jury (Spencer v. MacLaine, 24th December, 1890).

The Magistrate, in his reasons for decision, goes through the evidence pointing out that there was no corroboration of the plaintiff's assertion that he was called by a woman from the upstairs of the house basing, it would appear at first sight, his belief in the truth of this statement by the fact that none of the women inmates of the house were called to deny his assertion. Further on, however, in his decision the Magistrate says, "I am of opinion that the plaintiff was bitten on the steps by the dog which was then loose, he having gone there at the request of a woman living upstairs in defendant's house." This shows that the plaintiff's evidence on this point was believed.

The law as stated by the Magistrate was admitted to be correct and there was no question about the ferocity of the dog or that it was habitually tied in the yard or that it bit the plaintiff severely. There were undoubtedly some discrepancies in the statements of the witnesses, more in those called for the defence, but there was sufficient evidence called for the plaintiff, if it was believed, to show that the dog was loose when it bit the plaintiff and the Magistrate was justified in finding this as a fact if he so believed the testimony given.

The Magistrate, in his reasons for decision, does not allude to the evidence of Moonsammy and Mahatoo but contents himself with analysing that for the defence which did not satisfy him that the dog was chained to the old counter and the conclusion he arrived at that the dog was loose could only be based on his belief of the evidence for the plaintiff and his disbelief of the evidence for the defence which latter fact is shown by his remark "The evidence as to this (that is, that the dog was tied to an old counter) is very conflicting."

From the evidence given before the Magistrate I do not think the opinion he formed was an unreasonable one.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.

DOGIE, Appellant,
versus

LUKE, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of a Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District who convicted the appellant of unlawful and malicious wounding and sentenced him to two months' hard labour.

The reasons for appeal are:

1. That the decision is erroneous in point of law;

(a) Because it was not proved that in committing the assault the appellant was acting in concert with the two other persons that were charged.

(b) It was not competent for the Magistrate on the evidence adduced for the prosecution to convict the appellant under section 35 of Ordinance 17 of 1893.

The charge, as originally laid before the Magistrate, was that three persons, of whom the appellant was one, feloniously, unlawfully and maliciously with a certain knife did cut and wound one Prince Osband with intent in so doing then and there to do him some grievous bodily harm. Depositions were taken and the three defendants were committed for trial but the Attorney General, under the powers conferred on him by section 74 of 19 of 1893, referred the case back to the Magistrate with directions to deal with the case summarily. The Magistrate, therefore, continued the proceedings under section 33 of Ordinance 12 of 1893. This section provides that if a Magistrate, on the holding of any preliminary inquiry on a charge of an indictable offence is, of opinion, that the evidence establishes or appears likely to establish the commission of a summary offence of a like kind to the offence charged, he may, if he thinks fit, inform the accused person accordingly, and all further proceedings in the case thereafter shall be the same as if a complaint had been made against such person for such latter offence Provided that in such case all witnesses already examined shall be recalled for cross-examination or further cross-examination if the defendant so desires.

The learned Counsel for the appellant intimated that the real object of the appeal was to obtain a modification of the punishment but on my pointing out to him this was no ground of appeal, the reasons for appeal were argued.

It was pointed out that the Magistrate in his reasons for decision gave no reasons but simply recorded his finding, this is so.

It was urged that as the original charge was one of felony, it was not competent for the Magistrate to convict under section 35 of 17 of 1893, but the offences under that section are of a like kind to those under section 62 of 18 of 1893, the former including unlawfully and maliciously wounding or inflicting grievous bodily harm with or without any weapon or instrument, and the latter includes unlawfully and maliciously by any means whatever wounding or causing any grievous bodily harm with intent to maim, disfigure or cause any grievous bodily harm.

The offences being of a like kind the Magistrate was right in dealing with the case as referred back to him as if the charge was under section 35 of 17 of 1893.

The three defendants were tried together under the one charge but by section 40 of the Ordinance, every complaint shall be deemed divisible; and if the commission of the offence charged, as described in the statute creating the offence or as charged in the complaint, includes the commission of any other offence, the defendant may be connected of any offence so included which is proved although the whole offence charged is not proved.

Availing himself of the provisions of this section the Magistrate convicted one of the defendants of common assault and fined him $10, or one month's imprisonment, with hard labour. The other two were convicted of unlawful and malicious wounding and were sentenced one to 5 month's imprisonment with hard labour and the appellant to two months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

The Magistrate did not think fit apparently to inform the accused persons of the summary conviction offence which he was of opinion, was or might be established by the evidence but he evidently offered to recall any witnesses for further cross-examination.

Witnesses for the defence were called and the decision was as stated.

The evidence for the prosecution was to the effect that the first and second defendants were wrestling for an umbrella. The third defendant (appellant) pulled it from the first defendant. A donkey which was being driven in a cart by a man called Burrowes made a dash at the first defendant, words ensued, the appellant held the donkey, and the second defendant struck at Burrowes with the umbrella. The first defendant took out a penknife and made a stab at Burrowes who ran away followed by the three defendants who, however, did not catch him. Meeting Osborne (the wounded man) Burrowes turned back and got into his cart. First defendant stabbed Osborne and the appellant, to whom a stick was flung by the watchman at the building gate at Ruimveldt, struck Osborne on the mouth and knocked out one or two of his teeth. The man Osborne fell and while on the ground was assaulted by the second defendant who used an umbrella and also pelted bricks. The three defendants ran away when a constable appeared.

There was no evidence to connect the appellant with the use of the knife in any way and the assault he committed differed only from that committed by the second defendant inasmuch as he used a stick instead of an umbrella and knocked out the teeth. From what the witnesses said his conduct was less violent than that of the second defendant although he produced a greater effect by his one blow with a stick than the second defendant did with several inflicted by an umbrella. The first defendant was undoubtedly the most truculent and used a dangerous weapon.

The Acting Solicitor General, who appeared for the respondent, stated he did not contend that a penalty could not be inflicted if the charge was treated as one of common assault.

In dealing with appeals the Court by section 31 of 13 of 1893, has power to affirm, modify, amend or reverse the decision of the Magistrate or make such other order for disposing of the case as justice may require. This I take it to mean that where a conviction is upheld under a specific section under which imprisonment is the only punishment a fine cannot be substituted, but if the Appellate Court finds that the evidence does not establish the commission of the whole offence charged it may reduce the offence to one of a minor degree, if it is included in the offence charged, and may substitute a penalty if such minor charge allows of its being done and justice is satisfied.

In the case of Glasgow and Coates v. Brandon, 18th April, 1885, Chalmers, C.J., where it was asked that the sentence of imprisonment should be altered into one of fine, said the Review Court has no power to alter the sentence of a Magistrate where it does not transgress the limits of his statutory authority adding "I would be glad if some course by way of amends could be taken which would have the like effect (obviate the necessity of enforcing the sentence.) This case was dealt with under the old Review Ordinance by what the Court had power to "reverse, "affirm or amend the determination of justice in "respect of which the Review has been had or remit "the matter to the justice with the opinion of the "Court thereon, or may make such other order in "relation to the matter and may make such orders "as to costs as to the Court may seem fit."

13 of 1893 is much wider; the introduction of the words "modify either in whole or in part," and the addition of the words "for disposing of the case as justice may require," after the words, "make such order" enlarge the power of the Appeal Court very materially. According to Webster "modify" means "to vary, to give a new form to a thing, to moderate, to qualify, to reduce in extent or degree."

"Vary," according to the same authority, means to alter in form, appearance, substance or position, to make different by a partial change; as to vary a thing in dimensions, also to change to something else.

Adopting, therefore, the view I take that the Court can modify within certain statutory limits, I am of opinion, that as the whole offence charged was not proved against the appellant the proper conviction would have been as in the case of the second defendant for a common assault. I therefore modify the decision to a conviction of common assault and order the appellant to pay a fine of $15 in default to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for one month.

Under all the circumstances, I grant no costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURSDICTION.

THIS 1ST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1909.

TAT

versus

HING

The Full Court has found in its judgment that the sum of $87,423 was the amount agreed on as the purchase money of the Lombard Street businesses only. I am not prepared to disturb this finding, nor do I consider that its competent for this Court to take evidence which, in the opinion of counsel, may tend in this direction. This is the only point argued before the Court to-day, and the further taking of accounts is adjourned sine die.

M. J. BERKELEY, J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 2ND DAY OF OCTOBER, 1909.

W. E. LEWIS

versus

E. L. WILLIAMS.

The plaintiff's claim is against the defendant as maker of a certain overdue promissory note in favour of the plaintiff for $400 dated 15th July, 1908, and payable 3 months after date at the British Guiana Bank in Georgetown for value received, which said promissory note was, at maturity, duly presented and was dishonoured for non-payment, and remains unpaid and an alternative allegation that the defendant waived presentment by promising to pay. Interest 46 cents is also claimed and costs.

The defence is shortly a denial of the making of the note. A plea of no consideration, a denial of due presentment at the Bank, and dishonour for non-payment, a denial of waiver and promise to pay and a plea of not indebted.

Various interlocutory proceedings were taken in this case, and at the hearing the pleadings were as stated.

Evidence was given by the plaintiff and there is no doubt the defendant received consideration for the note of which she was the maker. The real points at issue are whether the promissory note was duly presented, for all through the plaintiff's case the due presentment was averred, and whether there was a waiver of the presentment.

As to the presentment it is undoubted that the promissory note, which was not discounted at the Bank, was taken to the Bank after business hours on Saturday, the 17th October, 1908, as the days of grace expired on the day following, a Sunday. One of the acting cashiers told the plaintiff he could not be attended to. On the following Monday, the plaintiff again went to the Bank, and was told if he wanted any information he should have gone on Saturday during Banking hours, no information was given, and a request to mark the note was refused. The cashier could not identify the note, the defendant is not known to the cashier and as far as he was aware there was no money for her at the Bank.

For the plaintiff it was argued that when a promissory note is made payable at a particular place, although it must be presented there for payment, it was not necessary, in order to render the maker liable, that it should be presented there on the day when it becomes due. The case of Gordon v. Kerr, 35 Sc. L.R. (1898) was referred to. This case is mentioned in Butterworth's "Ten Years Digest" but the report is not in the Library.

A distinction was also drawn between the liability of a maker and that of an endorser, due presentment in the case of the latter being necessary.

In the old case of Rhodes v. Gent, 5 B & A., 244, quoted in support, it was held that an acceptor was not exonerated by non-presentment in time unless he sustains any actual prejudice.

By section 89 of 13 of 1891, the maker of a note shall be deemed to correspond with the acceptor of a bill and the endorser of a note shall be deemed to correspond with the drawer of an accepted bill payable to drawer's order.

By section 87, when a note is in the body of it made payable at a particular place it must be presented at that place in order to render the maker liable; in any other case presentment for payment is not necessary to render the maker liable.

By section 89, the maker of a note by making it engages that he will pay it according to its tenor (he is the party primarily liable upon the instrument and is bound to seek out and pay the holder).

A promissory note made payable at a bank without the word "only" is equivalent to a general acceptance (section 19).

By section 52, when a bill is accepted generally, presentment for payment is not necessary in order to render the acceptor liable, but the provisions as to acceptance do not apply in the case of a promissory note. It was said in Heylin and others v. Adamson 2 Burr: 676. "While a promissory note continues in its original shape of a promise from one man to pay to another, it bears no similitude to a bill of exchange. When it is endorsed the resemblance begins, for then it is an order by the endorser upon the maker of the note (his debtor by the note) to pay to the endorser. This is the very definition of a bill of exchange."

In America it has been held that the maker and acceptor are bound although presentment is not made at the due time, this agrees with the decision referred to in Butterworth's Digest (Gordon v. Kerr) and accords with the principles laid down in the English cases that when a particular place is named in the body of a note presentment must be made at that place but need not be made on the day of maturity, and also because the person primarily liable undertakes to have the money there, and to leave it there till the bill or note is presented, and if he does so and in consequence of that, by the failure of the banker he receives an injury he will be exonerated if the bill has not been presented in due time. Presumably a note such as this must be presented within a reasonable time. In Smith and others v. Vertue and others 30 L.J. N.S. p. 60, Erle, C.J. said: "Now as a general rule the contract of the acceptor is to pay on the day when the bill falls due; or on any future day, when the holder chooses to call on him. He in effect by his acceptance says 'I will have funds on the day of the maturity of the bill, and I will keep those funds ready for the holder of the bill when he chooses to call for payment.' Byles, J., concurred that the general obligation at common law was only suspended on the conditions expressed—such condition being in the words 'accepted payable on giving up a bill of lading for seventy-six bags clover seed at the London and Westminster Bank.'"

Keating, J. held that where an acceptance was qualified as to the place in which the presentment was to be made that the non-presentment on the day on which the bill became due did not discharge the acceptor.

In Ramchurn Mullick v. Luchmeechund Radakissen 9 Moores Privy Council Cases, p. 70, the following passage occurs: "The person giving the cheque must be considered as the person primarily liable to pay, who orders his debt to be paid at a particular place and as going much in the same position as the maker of a promissory note or the acceptor of a bill of exchange payable at a particular place, and not else where, who has no right to insist on immediate presentment at that place." See also note in Serle Norton & Moody and Robinson p. 404 referred to.

The distinction between makers and acceptors and drawers and endorsers is further indicated so far as due presentation is concerned by section 45 of the Bills of Exchange Ordinance, where it is enacted that if a bill is not duly presented the drawers and endorsers shall be discharged; makers and acceptors are not mentioned. (See note (c) Byles on Bills, p. 289).

That presentation at a bank must be made during business hours has been decided by a number of cases, and is settled law.

In the case now being dealt with the note was presented, I have no doubt, at the bank on the first occasion after office hours, but on the second occasion during office hours. There were no funds there for the defendant who had no account with the bank. The defendant as the maker of the note is liable.

The note, it may be mentioned, never passed out of plaintiff's possession. He is the holder of it.

As to the other point of waiver of presentment, if it were necessary I should hold that it had been waived. The consideration is proved.

On the whole case, I think the plaintiff must succeed. There will therefore be judgment for $400 46 and costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, Acting C.J.
